PETROLEUM, OR ROCK OIL .-- The rock oil discoveries which have for some time caused so much excitement in Western Pennsylvania, were the subject of an interesting paper, read before the American Scientific Convention at Newport on Friday last, by Prof. Newberry. The oil is found very abundantly in Pennsylvania, and is also met with in Western Virginia and Ohio, Canada and other places. The wells yield by pumping, from ten to twenty-five barrels per day of the crude oil. The yield of the refined article of the Pennsylvania oil is about 85 per cent, of the whole. Prof. N. states that he recently saw a well which gave ten barrels a day of pure Thomas Lomax, and Jane E. his wife, have in the oil, without any foreign admixture, and it tract of land in the bill mentioned-the liens by was barrelled and sent to market as it came mortgage, deed of trust, or otherwise, existing from the ground. The owner was not satis- against the said tract of land, to whom due, by fied, and deepened his well, and in eighteen hours 150 barrels were collected from it-but this proved to be very impure. The crude od burns dimly and is a very good lubricator, under the deed of trust executed by Addison & and when refined, has less smeke and less Howard, of the 30th of March, 1858, in the bill odor than any other oil, and is not explo- mentioned. And the said master is further resive, while its illuminating power is equal to the best coal oil, and can be furnished cheaper than any other. In Illinois, the oils occur in limestone, and the loss by distillation is about one-half. These oils everywhere occur for the most part about one geo- mains undisposed of. And, further, to ascertain logical level. The Portage sandstone, which is a porous rock, is the one most frequently penetrated with the hope of getting oil; but this rock only serves as a reservoir for it as is forced up from below. The chemists 1858, executed by E. B. Addison, Sr., and the must announce the theory of its formation. but it seems to have distilled from the carbenaceous deposit below, and it may be the product of animal as well as vegetable remains. In some cases the natural specimens are as trenslacent as olive or castor ed, and is found to burn better and to be generally superior to common oil.

SIMPLE DIVISION .-- A Southern planter named P---, pretty well-to-do in the world now, was, some twenty years ago, a poor boy on the Eastern shores of Maryland,-One of the most marked traits of his character was an inordinate love of money. In the course of time P-was of age, and thought it was about time to get married. He went to a neighboring village, and was introduced to the daughter of Judge P-"Fine gal," said the embryo speculator to his friends, who were gaining him an entrance to the clite. "\ ery."

They moved side Commissioners to the foregoing cause and all by side through a space of 35,000 miles, first increasing in brightness then fading fixed upon Monday, the 17th day of September, away; in five minutes they had vanished. They did not alter the shape of a group time and place, when and where, I shall proceed of large black spots which lay directly in to execute the decree of which the foregoing is an their paths. Momentary as this remarkable extract, at which time and place they are hereby phenomenon was, it was fortunately witnessed | required to attend, and confirmed, as to one of the bright lights by another observer Mr. Hodgson, at Highgate, who by a happy coincidence, had also his telescope directed to the great luminary at the same instant. It may be, therefore, that these two gentlemen have actually witnessed the process of feeding the sun by the fall of meteoric matter. But, however this may be, it is a remarkable circumstance that the observations at Kew show that on the very day, and at the very hour and minute of this unexpected curistorm or great disturbance of the magnetic elements occurred four hours after midnight, extending to the Southern vations of Schwabe, compared with the magnetical records of our colonial observatories, had already rendered nearly certain.— Commissioners to the foregoing cause and all
